INCIDENT DESCRIPTION

The incident occurred at exactly 10:59am on January 17, 2020, inside the Clark and Division redline stop, by the southwest entrance, before the turnstiles, two police offers were with a civilian man. One of the male officers was yelling so loudly at the civilian that his voice could be heard from the train platform over the sound of the moving trains. As I continued up the stairs, the yelling became even louder. The officer was berating the man who said he was suffering from a heart condition.

It would be inappropriate and unnecessary to yell at someone to ask if they needed an ambulance in any circumstance, but this was even more egregious. The officer's yelling made me feel unsafe and worried. I was even more worried for the safety of the civilian, who clearly said he was concerned about his heart. I am not sure why the interaction was initiated, but there is no reason that could possibly justify the officer's extreme reaction. I am beyond disappointed to have seen CPD acting in this way.
